

BUILDING AT THE NANOSCALE WITH DNA BRICKS

Lorenzo di Michele

University of Cambridge, UK

Synthetic DNA molecules can be used as construction materials for creating complex nanoscale shapes and machines. I will explain how "DNA nanotechnology" can help us understand the physics of important microscopic processes, create new smart materials, and even replicate some of the functionalities of biological cells.